

What the 2018-19 NCI® Child Family Survey data tells us about

Case Management and Staff Support Across NCI States

NATIONAL CORE INDICATORS®
NASDDDS & HSRI

This report tells us about:

- What NCI tells us about case management and staff support
- Why this is important

What is NCI?

Each year, NCI asks people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD) and their families how they feel about their lives and the services they get. NCI uses surveys so that the same questions can be asked to people in all NCI states.

Who answered questions to this survey?

Questions for this survey are answered by a person who lives in the same house as a child who is getting services from the state. Most of the time, a parent answers these questions. Sometimes a sibling or someone who lives with the child and knows them well answers these questions.

How are data shown in this report?

NCI asks questions about planning services and supports for children who get services from the state. In this report we see how family members of children getting services answered questions about planning services and supports.

- In this report, when we say “you” we mean the person who is answering the question (most of the time, a parent).
- In this report, when we say “child” we mean the child who is getting services from the state.

We use words and figures to show the number of yes and no answers we got. Some of our survey questions have more than a yes or no answer. They ask people to pick: “always,” “usually,” “sometimes,” or “seldom/never.” For this report, we count all “always” answers as yes. All others we count as no.

We round percentages to the nearest ten percent. To round, we look at the last digit in a number. If the digit is 5 or more, we “round up” to the next highest number with a zero. If the digit is 4 or less, we “round down” to the next lowest number with a zero.

For example:

If 87% of people say services and supports always change when needs change, we “round up” to 90%.

If 12% of people say they get the supports and services their family needs, we “round down” to 10%.

This report can help people talk about services and supports. If you want more information, you can look up the full report at:

<https://www.nationalcoreindicators.org>

Making Connections -- Why Is This Important?

Most of the children with IDD who get services and supports live with their families. The Child Family Survey provides a way for these families to comment on whether their family and their child with IDD are being supported to live a good life and to make choices about who supports them. It is important to know if family caregivers believe they are getting needed support from staff and their case managers and whether they can get in contact with staff and the case manager if they have problems. Families should also be able choose the staff who work with their child and they should be able to change their staff and case manager if they are not satisfied. Feedback from families on these issues can be shared with state officials (like a governor or mayor) in order to inform policy making and to increase staff and case manager responsiveness.

Choice

Sometimes families can make choices about the people who help them. NCI asks if families can make choices about the people who are paid to help their child with a disability.

Reminder:

- When we say “you” we mean the person who is answering the question (most of the time, a parent).
- When we say “child” we mean the child who is getting services from the state.

Did your family choose, or can you change, your child's case manager/service coordinator?

NCI tells us 1 out of every 10 people said their family choose or can change their child's case manager.

Can your family always choose or change the agency that provides your child's services?

NCI tells us 5 out of every 10 people said their family can always choose or change the agency that provides their child's services.

Can your family always choose or change your child's support workers?

NCI tells us 5 out of every 10 people said their family can always choose or change their child's support workers.

Does your family directly manage support staff? For example, does someone in your family hire support staff or schedule when they work with your family member.

NCI tells us 5 out of every 10 people said their family directly manages support staff.

Case Managers/Service Coordinators and Support Workers

There may be many people who help families and children who get services from the state. Case Managers/Service Coordinators work closely with families to help families decide, organize and get the services they need. Support workers are paid to help at home, work and day program.

Reminder:

- When we say “you” we mean the person who is answering the question (most of the time, a parent).
- When we say “child” we mean the child who is getting services from the state.

Are you or your child always able to contact the case manager/service coordinator when you want?

NCI tells us 5 out of every 10 people said they or their child are always able to contact the case manager/service coordinator when they want.

Does the case manager/service coordinator always respect your family's choices and opinions?

NCI tells us 7 out of every 10 people said the case manager/service coordinator always respects their family's choices and opinions.

Are you or your child always able to contact his/her support workers when you want?

NCI tells us 5 out of every 10 people said they are always able to contact child when they want.

Do support workers always come and go when they are supposed to?

NCI tells us 6 out of every 10 people said support workers always come and go when they are supposed to.

Do support workers always speak to you in a way you understand?

NCI tells us 7 out of every 10 people said support workers always speak to them in a way they understand.

If your child does not communicate verbally, are there always support workers who can communicate with him/her?

NCI tells us 3 out of every 10 people whose child does not communicate verbally said there are always support workers who can communicate with him/her.

Do support workers always have the right information and skills to meet your family's needs?

NCI tells us 4 out of every 10 people said support workers always have the right information and skills to meet their family's needs.

Do service providers for your child work together to provide support? For example, does the agency providing transportation work together with the day program?

NCI tells us 7 out of every 10 people said providers work together to provide support.

Are services always delivered in a way that is respectful of your family's culture?

NCI tells us 8 out of every 10 people said services are always delivered in a way that is respectful of their family's culture.

What Did Family of Children With across NCI States Say?

- 10% They or their child choose their child's case manager/service coordinator
- 50% Their family always choose or change the agency that provides their child's services
- 50% Their family always choose or change their child's support workers
- 50% Their family directly manage support staff
- 50% They or their child are always able to contact the case manager/service coordinator when they want
- 70% The case manager/service coordinator always respect their family's choices and opinions
- 50% They or their child are always able to contact support workers when they want
- 60% Support workers always show up to work on time and leave when they should
- 70% Support workers always speak in a way they understand
- 30% There always support workers who can communicate with their child if he/she does not communicate verbally
- 40% Support workers always have the right information and skills to meet their family's needs
- 50% Service providers work together to provide support
- 80% Services always delivered in a way that is respectful of their family's culture

Learn More About Access to Services Across NCI States

You can find National and State reports with all of this information at <https://www.nationalcoreindicators.org/survey-reports/>.

Have questions or comments, email us at: dhiersteiner@hsri.org